Time of change is ahead

Fall has always been one of my favourite seasons, because it symbolizes a time of transition and change.

2012 certainly has been a year full of change for the members of NSGEU. Sometimes, change is positive. This government has developed a respectful line of communication with the union, a change that has been welcome and necessary. In other instances, such as the potential contracting out of government financial SAP services, we remain at odds.

As a union, we want to see all communities in this province thrive and grow. But not at the cost of uprooting the lives and workplaces of our members and their families. Our government has a responsibility to ensure public sector employees are consulted and heard when changes like these are being considered, and to take into consideration the serious disruption of services. Instead of creating new jobs and services the government has approached this attempt at "rural stimulus" by relocating jobs. All of the affected departments stand to lose out on a wealth of expertise and experience that these civil service employees have amassed over the years. (See more on this on page 7).

Currently, our members who work for the Department of Finance as SAP experts are very worried about their jobs within the public sector, as well. That's because the Province is considering contracting out their jobs to a private company, a move that would seriously jeopardize our members' job security and quality of life, not to mention the personal data of thousands of Nova Scotians. Approximately 90 per cent of affected workers have given the Minister of Finance notice of their intent not to follow their jobs to the new company if they are contracted out, which speaks volumes about how concerned they are about the proposed plan. (See more on this on page 5 & 6).

At the same time, management at Capital District Health Authority is moving forward with its plan to contract out their AV & Print Services, even though cost analyses show that using an outside contractor will yield no cost savings for taxpayers. Little to no consideration has been given to the fact that these workers have a knowledge base of the medical system that is invaluable when it comes to producing critical patient communications. Are we really willing to jeopardize patients' health and safety for what would likely be very minimal cost savings?

These are the kinds of change that the NSGEU does not support: We believe these are decisions that will not only hurt our members, but will fail to benefit the people of Nova Scotia, as a whole.

But we're changing, too. NSGEU is evolving to better serve its membership and face challenges like these. We've recently gone through a restructuring process with staff, so we are better organized and equipped to meet your needs, and we are in the midst of building a new home for membership and staff. (See more on this on page 8 & 9). Exciting times lie ahead for the NSGEU!

We rely on you, our members, to tell us when things aren't going right, so we can stand up together and fight back. Please continue to let us know about changes – both positive and negative – taking place in your workplace. We want to help, and together, we can make a difference.

In Solidarity

LABOUR DAY 2012

Don Goss, President of Local 7, and Dawn Ferris, NSGEU 2nd Vice President, were just two of hundreds of workers who showed up with family, friends and other supporters to march in the annual Labour Day parade. The event, which celebrates the accomplishments of organized labour in Nova Scotia and throughout North America, includes a march through downtown Halifax and a BBQ. Similar events were held in Sydney, Kentville, Port Hawkesbury, and Yarmouth.

McNeil appointed Director of Negotiations and Servicing

Newly-created position oversees Healthcare Acute &
Community sector

Neil McNeil has been a union member for 32 years. He has been appointed to the position of Director of Negotiations and Servicing for the NSGEU's Healthcare Acute & Community sector.

We are pleased to welcome Neil McNeil to his new role as the Director of Negotiations and Servicing for the NSGEU's Healthcare Acute & Community sector.

Due to the tremendous growth in membership over the past several years, the Board of Directors recently created an additional Director of Negotiations and Servicing position. Robin MacLean will continue on in her role, overseeing the Government & Education sector of the union.

Neil has been a union member for 32 years. He is a former NSGEU 1st vice-president (1994-1996) and joined NSGEU staff as an Employee Relations Officer (ERO) in 1996, representing a range of members in the trade union, civil service and health care locals. In 2009, he stepped into the role of Servicing Coordinator responsible for Health Care, where he has successfully managed the negotiations and servicing of a wide variety of locals.

Neil has demonstrated a true dedication to the labour movement, and the years of expertise and background he brings to this new position are sure to be invaluable. Congratulations, Neil!

Government SAP services are a quality public service we can't afford to lose

Since the summer, the provincial government has been in talks with a company that "shall not be named" which approached the Province with a proposal to establish a Global IT Centre here in Halifax.

Not surprisingly, the company has made the provision of our core government financial services and its public funding a cornerstone requirement of their proposal.

Our core government financial services are currently provided by a team of highly trained IT experts, most of whom (73 out of 110) are our members.

Another group of IT experts, who are not our members, work in HASP (Health Administrative Services Program) and provide SAP services specifically to the District Health Authorities.

These IT specialists maintain, customize, and keep data secure for the entire government financial and payroll system. Their services include: system customization; financial or data analysis; standardization or streamlining advice; propose design advice; and solve diagnostic problems.

For example, if the government's Transportation Department wants to find out how many Transportation buildings there are in the province and how much they cost to heat each year, our SAP team would get together, analyze the request, and design a report based on information from the system. problems and implement solutions. They can actually create great programs that make our government run smoothly.

Our members bring revenue back to the government by providing SAP services to other public agencies which are billed for the services provided through Nova Scotia's SAP Customer Competency Centre (CCC). These include many Nova Scotia municipalities and provincial school boards as well as the Property Assessment Corporation, NSLC and Halifax Water Commission. HRM's internal audit identified the CCC as the most efficient affected told us they will not choose to take a new job with the multinational company "that shall not be named." The company will need the expertise in order to transition the service. Without these highly skilled, highly trained people, there is no doubt the service to Nova Scotians would be at risk.

We are also concerned about our public information. Our members tell us that once someone has access to the data, they can access all of it. We would rather a government employee have this responsibility than an employee of a multinational, for-option for the outsourcing of their SAP services. But with the Province's SAP services threatened with contracting out, they may be forced to go with a higher-cost option.

How much more will SAP services cost the public once they are privatized? Our members tell us that in their experience every question will be billed – every change requested from clients will be met with the most expensive process the company can find. Can school boards afford this added cost? Can smaller municipalities afford it?

When a service is privatized, profit, not public service is the goal of the owners. The employees are the means to get that profit and are treated with a large degree of indifference and disdain in the private sector. The company "that shall not be named" is fiercely non-union. The members have concerns, based on past experience in the IT field, that even if the company agrees to terms on the initial transfer, terms and conditions of work will be changed as soon as the initial contract is up for renewal.

When SAP delivery goes wrong it can have disastrous effects on individuals. Employees of the Victoria Order of Nurses (VON), our members in Locals 31, 35, 40, 85 have been experiencing this since January 2011 with irregular and incorrect paycheques that have caused undue financial stress for many of our members. Their SAP payroll system has been maintained by a multinational company and they have not been well served.

Imagine what could happen if the province experienced the same issues? What would happen if the government payroll system didn't function properly? We can't risk the loss of our in-house quality SAP service.

On Wednesday, Oct. 10th, four members who deliver SAP services, along with President Jessome and Director of Servicing and Negotiations, Robin MacLean, met with the Minister of Finance, Maureen MacDonald to discuss the prospect of contracting out the province's SAP system. They outlined many of their concerns mentioned above.

Let us hope the government is listening to the risks associated with losing this quality in-house core government service. We believe they far outweigh any promises of job creation. If this core service is contracted out the public would be at risk of losing a quality service that would be very difficult to get back.

Our front line members are experts in this field and they have told us that contracting out this core service is not in the public's interest. We think you should be concerned.

Please email the Minister of Finance and let her know that you are opposed to the contracting out of SAP services:

Civil Service relocations

More members now faced with struggle to find suitable positions after turning down relocation

The relocations continue. In addition to relocating members who work for the Departments of Fisheries and Aquaculture, the Department of Agriculture and Maintenance Enforcement in the Department of Justice, the government has extended the relocations to include 22 more NSGEU positions from the Department of Economic and Rural Development and Tourism, as a part of a newly created Nova Scotia Tourism Agency in Windsor.

Service. However, when only 8 out of 73 people have chosen to move with their job, it is a struggle to find suitable positions for the remaining members, especially for those with a more specialized skill-set. Now, an additional 22 positions must be found.

It is a very stressful time for our members and the union and we will continue to work to ensure all members are placed in accordance with the process outlined in the Civil Service collective agreement.

"Some of our members affected by the relocations cannot yet find suitable jobs within the Civil Service. Now, the government has added more Civil Service members from Tourism into the mix. This is not the way to get people into rural Nova Scotia."

— NSGEU President Joan Jessome

This government initiative to move jobs to rural Nova Scotia has been extremely disruptive to our members and to the important public services they have been providing.

The majority of our members have had to make the heart-wrenching decision to not follow their jobs to the new locations. They have established lives in their present communities. They have children in school and partners with jobs. They cannot just pick up and leave.

Consequently, decades and decades of experience are lost.

The NSGEU Board of Directors, President Joan Jessome and past President Greg Blanchard broke ground on the new NSGEU building on Friday, June 22.

The warm, dry weather we had this summer helped construction crews immensely, allowing them to get ahead of schedule on some of their early stage projects, like installing services (water and sewer), preparing the site, and pouring footings.

of Directors and the Membership of NSGEU is very exciting. I believe this new facility will allow all members to continue moving through this new century with opportunities to:

- Further grow our membership;
- Further develop the members services we need;
- Provide a superior working environment for our staff;
- Assist NSGEU to keep moving forward as the leaders in the Labour movement in Atlantic Canada.

“The need and time has come for a larger, more membership focused meeting space!”

— NSGEU Secretary-Treasurer
& New Facility Project Manager, Darren McPhee

A message from NSGEU Secretary – Treasurer and New Facility Project Manager:

“We have worked hard together over the last decade and achieved a high level of both fiscal responsibility and financial resources within NSGEU.

These new resources have allowed NSGEU to move from dreaming about the things that could link us as union brothers and sisters to building the facilities needed to enable us to work together and strengthen our membership in solidarity.

The Board of Directors and Executive of NSGEU have been planning this project for the past three terms. Although there have been different members at the tables over these terms, there was always a unified vision: The need and time has come for a larger, more membership focused meeting space! This vision provided the foundation for the decisions made that have moved the project from a dream to a reality!

Leading the development of this project on your behalf and bringing forward this summary to the Board

I look forward to keeping you up-to-date on the progress of our project in the coming months, and even more, working with our members in this new facility, when it is complete.”

“WHY DOES THE NSGEU NEED A NEW BUILDING?”

Many members want to know why the NSGEU is building a new facility. We see this new space as an investment for membership and staff.

Due to the NSGEU's incredible growth in recent years, NSGEU staff use between 90-95 per cent of our current office space, which leaves little room for our members to meet and work.

The entire first floor of the NSGEU's new building will house the conference centre, meeting rooms and members' centre, offering plenty of state-of-the-art space where members can gather and do their work.

Our women are changing the world

By Donna Macgregor

The 2012 NSGEU Women's Conference, which was held April 13 to 15, aimed to educate our sisters on issues important to them; to acknowledge the contributions our sisters make to society and the union and to inspire our sisters to take a more active and assertive role in our Union, workplaces and their lives.

The weekend began with a moment of silence for our Fallen Workers.

Friday night was "Popcorn and a Movie" night where everyone watched the movie "Made in Dagenham." This movie told the story of female workers with the Ford Motor Company in Dagenham England who held a work stoppage to achieve pay equity with their male co-workers. Equal pay for Equal work!

Saturday was a busy day with many guests: Joan Jessome, President of NSGEU, spoke about her journey to becoming the first female President of NSGEU. It was an inspiring story that every woman there could relate to. It helped us realize that although we may sometimes feel alone, we are all connected because we are strong, beautiful women.

Sarah Clark, Elder of the Pictou Landing First Nation, spoke about her life as a young Mi'kmaq girl in Pictou Landing. She told a story about a girl who always questioned the world around her, about the lessons she learned and tragedies in her life that have made her the woman she is today. She also spoke about the environmental impact Boat Harbour has had on the Pictou Landing First Nation.

Pam Grace – Becoming an Outdoor Woman Facilitator – spoke about the Becoming an Outdoors Woman program in Nova Scotia. This program is a workshop primarily aimed at women but is an opportunity for anyone 18 years or older to learn outdoor skills - skills usually associated with hunting and fishing, but useful for many outdoor pursuits.

Hope Swinimer of the Hope for Wildlife Society spoke about her life as a curious little girl with a passion for wildlife. The Hope for Wildlife Society is non-profit organization that provides rehabilitation and rescue services to injured and orphaned wildlife, operates a wildlife help line, and provides public environmental education programs.

Nutritionist Heather Hill taught participants how to properly read food labels and what to look for. She highlighted many products we buy every day, from cereal and oatmeal to butter vs margarine. It was a great learning session for everyone and gave the women the skills they need to help better prepare healthy meals for their families.

Darcy MacCallum, Zumba Instructor, gave a Zumba class for the women. It was a great upbeat session that really got the women going! It was not an easy task, especially since the women had just enjoyed a roast turkey dinner.

The day ended with a game of Princess Bingo.

The conference was well attended with the most applications ever received - over 120 applications! The Conference was a hit and the Women's Issues Committee would like to extend a huge thank you to all participants, the Debert Hospitality Centre, Tessa Crawley (NSGEU) and everyone who helped to make the conference such a success!

Update on the NSGEU Cancer Support Fund

By Donna Macgregor

Two years ago, the NSGEU Women's Issues Committee created the NSGEU Cancer Support Fund through the Nova Scotia Cancer Centre and the QEII Foundation.

Through generous donations from NSGEU and its Locals, as well as individual donations, the fund raised just over $11,000 in its first year.

Over the past year, the NSGEU Cancer Support Fund has been well-used, which only shows how much this fund is needed. The fund has covered everything from groceries and gas to helping with the cost of having a family member stay at the Point Pleasant Lodge with a member who had to travel to the QEII for treatment. Everyone has been very grateful for the support and so happy that the Women's Issues Committee created this initiative.

To date, the fund has distributed well over $6,000 in financial assistance to the membership. The NSGEU Cancer Support Fund will continue to help members and their families as they battle this disease, but we still need your support!

How does the fund work?

- It can help cover travel costs, insurance payments, costs of lodging, utility payments, mortgage payments, services, groceries, and drug costs;
- Requests from this fund will have a maximum ceiling amount of $200.00 per patient/family (immediate family includes spouse or common law partner, same sex partner, adult children or parent);
- The NSGEU Cancer Support Fund will not replace any existing funding options available but will be an extra avenue for support.

The WIC encourages any locals who haven't already done so, to honour pledged donations made during Convention 2011 as soon as possible. We would also like to ask Local Presidents and activists to think of creative ways to raise money for the fund.

To apply for the fund, call the Nova Scotia Cancer Centre Social Worker at 473-6000. When you or your family member is accessing this fund you must know what NSGEU local you belong to (call the NSGEU at 424-4063 or 1-877-556-7438 to find your local number).

The members of "Team Jeremy" include Jeremy's mom, Doris Rehill, his two brothers, friends, and Dr. Marie-Claude Gregoire from the IWK Health Centre.

Helping others feel 'free'

By Donna Macgregor

Doris Rehill is a member of NSGEU Local 71C and a shining example of how NSGEU Women Do Great Things.

Doris is an Educational Assistant at Chignecto-Central Regional School Board. She lives in Pine Tree, Nova Scotia with her husband Robert. They have four children, Amber, Brandon, Matthew and Jeremy. Sadly, after a very difficult summer, Jeremy passed away in September at the IWK Health Centre, surrounded by his family.

Jeremy was 19 years old and had many physical and developmental problems. He had microcephaly, cerebral palsy, visual impairment, seizure disorder and was tube fed.

Doris has always been a supporter of inclusion both in the school system and in the community. In 2011, she watched a video about a father and son team from Massachusetts who ran together in many races, including the Boston Marathon. Dick Hoyt ran in the races pushing his handicapped son, Rick, in his wheelchair, because it made him feel "free."

Inspired by the video, Doris thought it would be a great way to show that handicapped people can participate in sports, while raising awareness of disabilities in the community.

Doris asked the question, "Why can't we give that experience to Jeremy?"

After discussing the idea with her family and friends, Team Jeremy was formed.

Despite Jeremy's medical problems, it was obvious to all when they saw him in his jogging stroller how much he loved to be outdoors and feel the wind on his face when he was "running."

Doris asked the question, "Why can't we give that experience to Jeremy?"

The Team includes his mom, Doris, his two brothers and many friends, along with Jeremy's doctor from the IWK, Dr. Marie-Claude Gregoire. The team ran in three races last year: the Bluenose Marathon, the Johnny Miles Marathon and the Pictou Lobster Carnival Race.

This year, the team has decided to raise money for the Palliative Care Department of the IWK. In Doris's own words "We get great joy at the smile that these races put on Jeremy's face and he has certainly taught us all many life lessons."

Since his passing, Jeremy continues to touch the hearts of many. In late September, the community held a memorial walk in his honour with all proceeds donated to the IWK. Doris, Jeremy and the team will continue to teach all of us many life lessons. Doris, your perseverance and commitment are to be congratulated!

A RECORD TURN-OUT FOR FAMILY FUN!

If we're lucky, it's one of our last chances to get outside and enjoy the final days of sun and warm weather before the leaves fall. The Cumberland Colchester Regional Council Family Fun Day draws hundreds of NSGEU members outside into the early autumn air to take part in an annual social, which is designed to entertain members and their friends and family.

This year, the event was held at River Breeze Farm, just outside Truro, on Sunday, September 16, and the impressive roster of events and activities drew a record number of attendees.

Smiling faces wound their way through the 12-acre corn maze, which was riddled with interactive games, and jumped on-board the cow train rides. Kids of all ages were kept busy for the entire day, playing laser tag, visiting the petting zoo, and playing with giant slingshots, tube slides, excavation pits and much, much more.

Edie Fraser is a Continuing Care Assistant with the VON and Chair of the NSGEU's Cumberland Colchester Regional Council, which organizes the annual event.

"About seven or eight years ago ... the Board of Directors at that time felt each (NSGEU) region ... should have a social," Fraser explained.

The event is meant to be an opportunity for members to enjoy an outing with family and fellow members, and as a "thank you" to activists for sacrificing their time to contribute to the NSGEU.

"It's a perk for our activists. And it doesn't matter how much you do or you don't do; you're still an activist," Fraser explained, "And it's a perk for them because there are so many times with NSGEU business, they're taken away from their families to go to some meetings..."

They held a few Family Fun Day socials, then a few years ago, decided to move the event to River Breeze Farm, which has an impressive corn maze. They planned the event for the end of October because they thought members would be interested in scooping up a pumpkin for Halloween, at the same time.

"The first one we tried, we got about 130 people ... and they were from our region," Fraser recalled.

One year, the event was completely rained out.

But the event has continued to grow. Last year, the Council had no idea how many people to expect, so they prepared for about 200. Around 325 people showed up.

They quickly realized that many people from outside the region were interested in attending their little social.

So with the permission of the Board and President Joan Jessome, they opened the event up to everyone, sending an invitation out to the membership across the province through the Labour Resource Centre. They received more than 700 RSVPs, and just as many members actually showed up the day of the event: over 500 adults, with 200 children in tow.

"It was just awesome! ... Everybody had a wonderful time," Fraser enthused, "I've gotten so many emails from people saying they had a wonderful time, and they hope we do it next year, and they're looking forward to coming back."

Fraser has heard back from many members who said that it was a wonderful way to spend time with their families. The kids particularly seemed to like the laser tag, swings and tube slide.

They try and improve the event in small ways every time they host it. This year, they made up NSGEU labels and had members write their names and locals on them.

"They were so big and bright that the minute you looked at someone, you knew that they were an NSGEU member, and it was just great that way!" Fraser said, "It's a unique situation to bring NSGEU members together."

Remembering Greg Blanchard, NSGEU President from 1980-1994

Former CBU instructor helped transform association into true union

It is with great sadness that we report the death of brother Greg Blanchard, who served as President of our organization for 14 years.

Greg passed away peacefully on Saturday, Aug. 25, surrounded by his family.

Greg's involvement and commitment to the labour movement spans over 40 years.

He was instrumental in leading our organization through its transformation from a civil service association to a union with a diverse membership that reaches across the public sector. Greg served as president of the NSGEU for 14 years from 1980 until 1994.

"I considered Greg a mentor and friend who was always supportive," said Joan Jessome, President of the NSGEU. "He has been a vital part of our history and his legacy will live on in our union."

Greg first became involved in the organization while an instructor of business administration at Cape Breton University, and was elected as the then-association's secretary-treasurer in the late 1970s.

In 1980, he was elected to his first term as president and was subsequently elected for six consecutive terms.

Through all of his dedicated years to the union, he was always supported by his loving wife, Anne, and their three children.

The NSGEU's new state-of-the-art conference centre will be named in honour of Blanchard's invaluable contributions to our union.

Socking It To Poverty since 2008

Winter can be a very difficult time for Nova Scotians who are already struggling to make ends meet. On top of already high food bills, they also have to cope with rising power and heating bills as the temperatures dip.

These additional costs often mean that people don't have the money left over to buy what many of us consider "essentials": winter hats, scarves, mitts, and yes, even socks.

be a financial one or if they went out and purchased socks or mittens," explained Rick Wiseman, Executive Liaison to the Human Rights Committee.

"Originally, it was just strictly socks – 'Sock It To Poverty' – but over the years, it's evolved into hats and socks, mittens and scarves a little bit, and we certainly don't turn those things down. Socks remain the 'meat and potatoes' of it..."

At the end of January, those donations are then distributed

Essentially, it's just looking to reduce poverty in each of our regions."

— Rick Wiseman

So, a few years ago, the NSGEU's Human Rights Committee decided to do its part to keep Nova Scotians warm and toasty during the cold winter months. They launched the Sock It To Poverty campaign, encouraging Locals to collect new socks, mittens, hats, and cash to purchase warm winter wear for people in their respective regions who need support during the especially trying winter months.

"Essentially, it's just looking to reduce poverty in each of our regions. It's an opportunity for members or Locals or whomever wants to make a donation of any sort, whether it to non-profit organizations in each respective region, so your gift stays within your community.

Last year, more than $1,000 and 1,000 items were collected during the drive.

This year's drive officially kicked off on October 26th, at the start of the NSGEU's Human Rights Conference. We'll be collecting donations until January 26th, but the sooner you can make a donation, the better.

If you'd like to make a donation, please contact your Local president or call the LRC at 424-4063 or 1-877-556-7438.
