Dear Mr. MacLean,

I hope you, your family, and all members of the Nova Scotia Government and General Employee Union had a safe, peaceful and happy holiday.

Thank you for your invitation to participate in a questionnaire developed by the Political Action Committee. The questions are comprehensive and the issues it raises are important. However, I feel that these questions and issues warrant a far more in-depth discussion than can be accomplished with a few simple sentences in response to a questionnaire.

My priority has been - and continues to be - to hear from people in every corner of our province about their concerns, priorities and ideas. I want to be the leader that brings Nova Scotians into the conversation, and collectively shape the policies that will move our province forward. I was very appreciative that you and I had an opportunity to speak early in the campaign.

Like you, I want to make health care easier to access for Nova Scotians. To accomplish that, I will expand virtual primary care services and create physical and virtual mental health walk-in clinics. I also want to ensure our province's economy not only recovers, but thrives. I want to stimulate that economic growth by investing in new small businesses, encouraging flexible work, and ensuring access to affordable childcare for parents.

I want to take on this job so that we can build a healthier, fairer and more prosperous Nova Scotia. That is why, at this time, I am focused on engaging with the members of the Nova Scotia Liberal Party.

If I am fortunate enough to receive the confidence of those Party members and become the next Premier, I will be meeting with stakeholders to discuss how we can work together toward our common goals. It is at that point that I will look forward to speaking with your Committee and discussing the concerns raised by your members in more detail .

Sincerely,
